Subject: Risk Management course

Hello,

Thank you for interest in our Security (Risk Management) courses.

Risk Management is a growing vocational field across many industry sectors. The skills you will learn in the Security (Risk Management) stream are the same skills you will need in any vocational field that involves Risk Management. Recent legislation in NSW for Occupational Health and Safety requires that all businesses must have a Risk Management policy in place by August 2002.

Safecity has a reputation for providing quality training. Our outcomes are positive, and are highly respected by the industry. Safecity will not place commercial gain above quality and ethics under any circumstances. Safecity's graduates are known to have earned their certificates.

Please read the following information carefully.

What courses are available?

There are three courses available in the Security (Risk Management) stream.

- h Certificate IV in Security (Risk Management)
- h Diploma of Security (Risk Management)

Enrolling in the program

You can enrol online at www.openlearningnet.com by going through the "Office" door, opening the "Security" filing cabinet, and clicking on the folder of the course you wish to complete.

Alternatively, you can fill in the enclosed application and send it to us via post with payment.

NSW applicants

The Certificate IV in Security (Risk Management) is the qualification needed for the NSW Security Industry Class 2A (Security Consultant) Licence. Safecity's course is approved by the NSW Police Commissioner for licensing purposes in NSW.

To enrol in this program for the NSW, you must either have a current NSW Security Industry Licence, or complete the enclosed Authority for Pre-Training Criminal Record Check form, and attach a clear photocopy of your drivers' licence or passport. Please enlarge the identification you provide to make sure that it is clear.

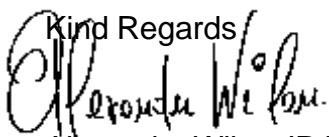

In order to apply for your NSW licence, you must also have 3 years experience in the area of security consultancy (or equivalent vocational field).

In any case, the journey starts with quality training.
